  ..................................................................................

Long ago, a small village lay between a forest and a hill. One day a thief stole a large, shiny metal bell from the village temple. A few villagers ran after him. But he ran very fast and disappeared into the forest.
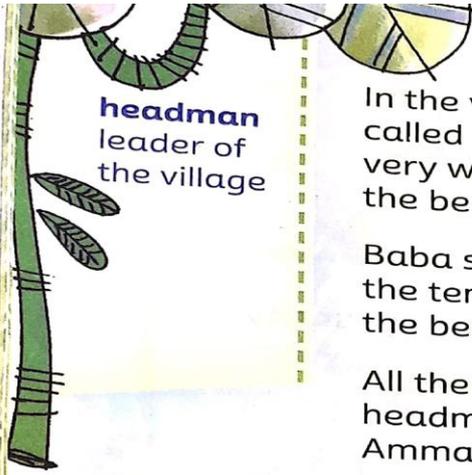

Once inside the forest, the thief found a clump of trees and sat in its shade to rest. Just then he saw a tiger! He dropped the bell and ran away.

On top of the hill, lived a troop of monkeys. One day, while looking for fruit in the forest, one of them spotted the stolen bell. He picked up the bell and shook it a few times. The jingle of the bell made the other monkeys laugh. Happy, he carried it up to the top of the hill.

Every night one of the monkeys would ring the bell, while the others laughed and enjoyed its jingle. However, the sound of the bell ringing on the hill every night frightened the villagers.

leader of the village

In the village, there lived an elderly man called Baba. Everyone thought he was very wise. They decided to ask him why the bell rang on the hill every night.

Baba said, 'The thief who stole the bell from the temple has died. His ghost rings the bell every night.'

All the villagers believed the story except for the headman and an old woman called Amma. You see, Amma did not believe in ghosts.
Next morning the headman announced, 'I will reward the person who finds out why the bell rings on the hill at night.'

We will read rest of the story tomorrow.
